

In the last election, Republican James LeMunyon ran unopposed. In his previous election, he won by 2,145 votes. Hillary won this district by 60.38% to 33.68%. We are going to win this election for the Democrats in 2017!

How We'll Win in 2017: Challenger Karrie Delaney

Daughter of a Korean War veteran, Karrie Delaney graduated from the University of South Florida and then went to work at a group home for foster children. This motivated her to run for public office. She became a member of the West Melbourne City Council. She also volunteered as a sexual assault counselor and became Board President of her county's crisis counseling organization. Because of her deep involvement with the community, she was hired by the State Attorney's Office to work with juvenile offenders, teaching them life skills and how to make restitution to their victims.

After moving to Northern Virginia, she became Communications Director for Shared Hope, a non-profit dedicated to ending sex trafficking. After leaving Shared Hope to focus on her family, she started her own consulting firm and has gotten even more involved in local Fairfax issues. She was appointed to be a member, and later Chair, of the Fairfax County Citizen Corps Council by County Supervisor Michael Frey. She was also appointed to the Fairfax County Library Board of Trustees and is currently the Chair.

She continues to volunteer and does pro bono work, notably with Voices for Vaccines, a parent-driven organization which provides parents with clear science based information about vaccines and vaccine-preventable diseases. She met her husband while in college and they have a son and a daughter.

Issues:

1. Women's reproductive rights: Karrie is a staunch defender of a woman's right to make her own health care decisions and have access to contraceptives. In her early twenties, she was the Board President of her county's Sexual Assault Victims Services Department, and was often the one to personally be at the hospital and act as a sexual assault survivor's advocate.

2. Immigration: In Virginia, and our country as a whole, Karrie feels that our diversity is one of our greatest assets as a community. We should not seek to drive immigrants and undocumented people into the shadows and away from the chance to provide for their families. That's why she supports comprehensive immigration reform that provides a path to citizenship for law-abiding, tax-paying immigrants.

3. Diversity: Karrie is a strong advocate for equality and inclusion for all, no matter your race, gender, religion, or who you love. In fact, Karrie found it very offensive to see LeMunyon vote this last session to allow businesses to discriminate against the LGBTQ community under the cover of "religious freedom." Virginia should be a welcoming state for all types of people, because our diversity is our biggest strength.

About the Republican Incumbent: James LeMunyon

James LeMunyon, 58, was elected to represent District 67 in 2009 and has served for four terms. He is married with three grown children. He graduated from Valparaiso University with a degree in physics and mathematics and earned a master's degree in meteorology from the University of Wisconsin-Madison. A former Deputy Assistant Secretary for export issues at the Commerce Department under George H.W. Bush and co-founder of Sterling Semiconductor, he is now a management consultant at Oak Hill Technology Partners.

Issues: A strong fiscal conservative who has said that a balanced budget is his top priority, LeMunyon serves on the Education, Transportation and General Laws committees in the House of Delegates. He has repeatedly voted against expanding Medicaid, explaining that additional federal health-related money should be directed "to additional care for people with physical and intellectual disabilities and mental health concerns, rather than provide healthy people with insurance." He also voted:

- 1. In favor of voter suppression initiatives to require voters to prove citizenship, show photo ID, have social security numbers verified.
- 2. Against immigrants, supporting HB 2000, (prohibiting sanctuary cities) and HB 2002 (requiring agencies helping refugees report yearly on the refugees' location age, gender and nationality).
- 3. Against women's reproductive rights. Voted in 2016 and 2017 to deny funds to Planned Parenthood.
- 4. Against high-occupancy toll lanes on I-66 inside the Beltway. His faction compromised in 2016, accepting toll lanes and getting accelerated construction of new I-66 lanes.

Potential Strengths: LeMunyon is respected by his party and close to the House Republican leader Bill Howell. He has an impressive voting attendance record with rare absences. He comes across as competent, bland, comfortable and a bit bipartisan. He has a strong interest in improving transportation in northern Virginia, and played an important role in a 2016 compromise to relieve congestion on I-66. He favors reducing elementary school class sizes, but it is unclear whether he has voted for money to hire new teachers. He had voted to allow home-schooled students to participate in public school athletic events. LeMunyon's business success prior to entering politics allows him to "speak the language" in a district full of technology workers. He seeks out communication from constituents, and responds thanking them, and actively responds to criticisms of his record in local opinion pages.

Potential Weaknesses: LeMunyon has worked to pass laws drafted by the American Legislative Exchange Council, a conservative group in Arlington whose members include corporations — some major energy companies, like Dominion Power — lobbyists like the National Rifle Administration and state legislators. LeMunyon in 2013 said "As someone who's actually attended an ALEC meeting, I agree with some of their stuff, but not everything... There are one or two bills that interested me, and some that are just off the wall." He has been on ALEC's International Relations Task Force.

On voting rights, LeMunyon has continually favored restrictions hitting poor and minority voters exercising the franchise. This year LeMunyon introduced a bill requiring the state to determine if voters are registered elsewhere and to use a return card to verify or dispute the out-of-state registration record. The bill was vetoed. He was a co-patron of the anti-LGBTQ Religious Freedom Act.

HD VA-67: Better Know the District

Geography & Environment

The district is in western Fairfax County around Chantilly and a small portion of Loudon County including the area of South Riding. Its zip codes are: 20120, 20151, 20152, 20171, 20191, and 22033. It is part of the technology corridor's expansion westward from Washington D.C. That growth spawned new developments like those in District 67, southwest of Dulles airport. Once there were plantations in the area, including one named Sully owned by the uncle of Confederate General Robert E. Lee. More recently there were farms; some have been transformed into residential suburbs since the 1990's. Many new transplants work in the technology industry or government-related companies.

Citizenry

The 80,000 residents of District 67 are predominately White (58%) with relatively high incomes and high levels of education. The next highest ethnicity are Asians at 21%, many of whom are naturalized Americans. Hispanics represent 10% and Blacks only 5% of the population. The age of residents is strongly skewed to working age adults: about 60% are adults between the age of 22 and 64; seniors over 65+ comprise only 7.5% of the population. District 67 has 80,414 people in the 2010 census, and 43% of the 26,664 households are families with children under the age of 18. The median age in Centreville is 36. Fifty-five percent of Fairfax County residents do not adhere to any religion. Catholics make up 17% while 19% are Protestants. While Loudoun County has more Catholics than other religions, 61% of those reporting in 2010 professed no religion.

Education

The educational level of the residents aged 25 or older is high: 27.1% have a high school diploma and 68.1% have degrees beyond high school. Just 4.8% (2,488 residents) have no high school diploma. Big high schools are Westfield High School in Chantilly, WT

Woodson HS in Fairfax, Centreville HS in Clifton, and Freedom HS in Loudoun County's town of South Riding. Northern Virginia Community College has a Loudoun County campus.

Economy

The District has a strong economy, with many of the residents commuting to Washington D.C. to work in government jobs. There is also a strong and growing tech sector. The median income is $131,600, with 6,860 households (25.7%) earning over $200K. Only 1211 households (4.54%) earn $20K or less. Non-Hispanic White households have the highest median income at $143,600; Asians' median income is $124,200. Median incomes for Blacks and Hispanics are $100,500 and $83,300, respectively. Among the working age population, 70.6% are employed, 3.7% are unemployed and 24.9% are not in the labor force. 854 households take food stamps (3.2%). District 67 is on the lower end at 88/100 in Virginia, in terms of food stamp recipients.

Health Status

The largest hospital is the 833-bed Inova Fairfax Medical Campus. Its 2016 study found hypertension a significant community concern; 40 percent of respondents had been diagnosed with hypertension. Many commute alone for 30+ minutes. Excessive drinking, diabetes and teenage depression occur at above-average levels in Fairfax and Loudoun Counties, though overall health ranks at or near the top. The Commonwealth Institute reported 1,400 residents would qualify for coverage if Medicaid had been expanded.
